A Turkey Trick in lows.

Late Friday afternoon a stranger whose appearance indicated that he did not live on the fat of the land every day, and that his hous shold knew little about purple and fine lines, entered a grocery store on Brady street, holding a fine's barge turkey by the legs. He walked up to the showease, saying: "I'd like a cigar, please," and one was handed him with a lighted match, "By the way," said—he, suddenly, "would—you ablige me with a piece of paper to wrap around the turkey—it does not look wall to eight. the turkey-it doesn't look well to carry it through the streets in this way." A polite clerk took the turkey, wrapped it up artistically in paper, which was tied so that it would stay. "Thank you, sir," said the stranger politely, as he turned and walked out with his turkey. He had not bette gone to minute when turned and walked out with his buckey. AN ARIZONA EXPLIRIENCE

It Ends in a Wedding-Trip With the Colonel's Daughter.

In reality Licutemant Parker knew very little of the energetic West as it materialized around Fort McDowell and what little he knew did notswell him with water him with pride. It was his idea that knowledge is power, knowledge of Arizona was only inule power and not to be coveted. He was not in deadly fear of that truculent creature, the Arizonian in a red shirt, but if he had chosen an individual to stand betweet the wind and his nobility, the gentleman in the garmine camisa would not have obgarmine chmisa would not have ob-tained the situation. His life was not totally without charm, for he was in-love with his Colonel's daughter, one of those charming young ladies found only in army circles, who have all the helish of their more fortunate city sis-ters with a scalately frankness and

It was arranged between Miss Helen and Parker that when he could get a leave it should be for a wedding journey. It was the peculiar charm of this arrangement that it was made without the Colonet's assistance or knowledge. Lovers must have their

"If that order is published, word of it will go to this convict by 'the underground,' and he will give me the slip." "Suppose you were to go away without an order," said the Colonel, "that would excite suspicion as well." "Let it be a false order?" "If wouldn't do any good. When those fellow's see a soldier they are on the alert, order or no order. I found an aged man in the vicinity who was Abo's playmate, and from him learned much that was interesting in regaint to his early habits, his carnest desire to learn, and his passion for books which he was not able to obtain. He read everything he could find in all, the region about; it may have been the region about it may have been that this deprivation of books and the means of learning there him upon his own resources and led him into those modes of thought, of quaint and apt Hustration and logical reasoning of the citing the lim. He was shout the only one in the vicinity who could read and write; he was noted for his kindness to every one, and his services were frogenity drawn upon by the settlers to write their letters, a kindness he always cheerfully rendered. Doing his "chores" in the morning, he would walk to Bonneville, the county seat of Warwick County, seventeen miles away, and then home again in time to do his "chores" at night, repeating this day after day. The lawyer came to know him. Years afterwards, when Lincoln was trestdent, a venerable gentleman and day entered his office in the White House, and standing before him, said:

"Mr. President, you don't know me." one day entered his office in the White-Frouse, and, standing before him, said: "Mr. President, you don't know me." The end, was at hand, faithful watchers at the bedside of the dying woman felt the shadow creeping upon the walls—it was the shadow of death—the light of the lowly cablin went slowly out—the mother had rest. Abraham gave way to grief that could not be consoled. They laid her tenderly away in an opening in the timber an eighth of a mile from the house. No minister could be procured at the time to perform the last sad—ties, but sympathizing friends offened hysinozac prayers over the dead.
